Sudden War Crisis In Europe To Put League To A Test

Greece Unwilling to Accept Terms of Ultimatum Sent by Italy Following Assassination of Delimitations Mission.

(By The Associated Press.)
ATHENS, Aug. 30.—Greece is understood here that Greece is not disposed to accept the humiliating conditions imposed by the Italian government, in its note demanding satisfaction for the killing of the Greco-Albanian frontier delimitations mission. In the event a deadlock is reached in settling the affair Greece it is understood will propose to submit the question to the League of Nations. The Greek government is disposed to express its profound sorrow over the massacre and indemnify the families of the Italian officials murdered on Greek territory.

(By The Associated Press.)
The Italian government's note to Greece demanded that the Greeks pay an indemnity of fifty million lire, salute the Italian flag and salute the Greek flag. The note also demanded that the Greeks accept the delimitations mission. An answer was required in 24 hours. An Athens cablegram stated last night that Premier Gonatas had informed the correspondent that while Greece did not find all the demands acceptable she would agree to some and ask for modification of the others. The Athens government signified its intention of replying to the note in the "me limit."

"Suicidal" Officer Makes His Escape From the Hospital

W. J. Williams Makes Get-away From the Hospital After Alleged Poison Dose.

(Special to The Bee.)
MARTINSVILLE, Aug. 30.—Many a prisoner has worked a shrewd trick to effect his freedom but to W. J. Williams goes the distinction of accomplishing the smoothest piece of work ever heard of in this section and his method was equally effective. Williams, a member of the local police force, was charged with the murder of a man named Warner who was caught with Williams with the twelve gallons of whisky, has submitted to a fine of $500 and returned to North Carolina.

Williams was recently caught with a lot of whisky. His case was being held in grand jury and he was being held in jail in the meantime. He had been captured while impersonating an officer. Sunday morning an alarming report was circulated around in the Henry county jail here that Williams had swallowed a number of antiseptic tablets used for disinfectant purposes with intention of ending his life because he was "in trouble and could not stand it any longer."

Williams was rushed to the hospital where antitoxins were administered in efforts to save the man's life. All danger was removed and it was intended to take Williams back to the jail Tuesday late. However, this was not done.

On Tuesday, two unidentified men, who said they were friends of Williams from North Carolina approached the authorities and asked for permission to visit the man in his room at the hospital. Their courtesy and

Robert Garrett On Stand Tells of Gun Fight With Pierce

Began Firing When Bullet Hit Him and Fired as Long as He Saw Pistol in Pierce's Hand.

(Special to The Bee.)
CUMBERLAND COURTHOUSE, Va., Aug. 30.—Robert O. Garrett, the witness stand in his own defense this morning, told of the various business enterprises he had embarked in and of the positions of trust he had held in Cumberland county, culminating with that of clerk of the court. He said he and his brother, Larkin, went to the home of Rev. E. S. Pierce to endeavor to learn from him something about the Chandler shooting, as they were interested in clearing up the matter, but he did not anticipate trouble, but carried his pistol as it was the usual thing to do.

He described the fight between Larkin and the minister and said, "I was turning to my right to the gate when I heard a shot and felt the bullet hit me. I whirled and fired immediately as fast as I could—mine was the second shot. I did not know Larkin was shooting."

He said he fired about five times "I fired as long as I saw the pistol in (Pierce's) hand and I thought I was in danger. There is no truth in the statement that I walked up and fired into the body."

Counsel for the defense sought to get before the jury how Garrett felt after he was shot, but the court ruled out the questions. On cross examination conducted by R. E. Byrd, Robert O. Garrett admitted he waited five days after the Chandler shooting to buy weapons superior to his old ones. Asked, "you are a habitual lover of guns?" Mr. Garrett answered "yes for the past ten years."

Mr. Garrett said he could not remember what was said at the conference with his brother the morning of the shooting but that it was in his mind that the preacher had said something improper regarding Mrs. Larkin. Garrett took the stand today in his own defense and while admitting he shot the minister he did not fire until Mr. Pierce had shot him in the back and he feared his life in danger. He declared witnesses who have given testimony that he shot first were enemies and had been for years.

Garrett was still on the stand and undergoing cross examination by R. E. Byrd of the prosecution when court recessed for lunch. Garrett gave his age as 42, said he was born and reared in King William county and that he came here about 1910. He was a deputy clerk on January 21, 1906. "Mr. Sanderson resigned as clerk in 1917," he testified, "and I took his place—was appointed. I was re-elected in 1919."

"Have you been active in politics," he was asked.

"I have."

"Have you made enemies here?" An objection was sustained, but the witness had already said "yes."

Garrett told of the farmers' meeting in Cumberland May 3 which preceded the shooting from ambush of A. M. Chandler. Garrett told of going to Richmond to interrogate a negro who had been arrested on suspicion of the shooting. He told of the capture of the negro and of the discovery of the secret compartment containing the whisky would come down the road in a short time. He hailed the driver of the truck who stopped immediately. The driver told him the name of the truck driver that he was looking for a liquor car and asked his assistance. He requested the man to block the road with his truck. The stranger complied with a considerable degree of courtesy and he would gladly accommodate the officer.

But the motor of the Ford spluttered and backfired and absolutely refused to start. Investigation was begun to ascertain the trouble, the officer detected a can of liquor. He continued his investigation but it was not to locate the trouble with the car but to locate the liquor.

The officer was somewhat puzzled over such a strong odor of liquor catching his nostrils and being unable to see in what possible part of the truck the fluid could be. Nothing was found in the front. He then went around to the body. Like any other truck it had an ordinary body. Nothing was in it except a few corn shucks and other refuse. A further more rigid probe brought other developments. The alert eye of the officer saw that the body was too shallow on the inside in comparison with the depth of the body on the outside.

The rest was easy. He lifted sections of the floor and there discovered the basement floor of the body taken up with liquor cans. The depth of the secret compartment was about eight inches.

The man was placed under arrest and his name asked. He declined to give it. He was taken to jail and the machine and liquor were confiscated. The strangers refused to reveal his

L. C. Moody who was ordered yesterday by Mayor Wooding to remove a streamer banner extending across Main street from the Holland building to the Burton Hotel, did so during the afternoon after having failed to secure a permit allowing it. Mr. Moody said that he had been finally referred to the city attorney who was out of town and that rather than prolong a discussion he took it down—only to drape it over the signboard on the top of the Holland building which Mr. Moody purchased last week.

Mr. Moody said that he was afraid that removal of the sign might create an impression that the event advertised—a Labor Day sporting card at Park Springs—had been called off.

The event he declared will be held at the Holland building. Reasons advanced for the removal notice were an ordinance which forbids such streamers. It was pointed out to the sports promoter that banners could be used for commercial purposes with propriety but he countered with the assertion that not many weeks ago permission had been given to string a banner promoting political candidacy.

Press Dispatches From Island Are Ordered Censored

Reports of Looming Revolt Given Significance by Latest Action of President—U. S. May Be Forced to Intervene to Restore Order.

(By The Associated Press.)
WASHINGTON, Aug. 30.—A message to the Cuban Legation today from foreign minister Zepedes, of Cuba, said that "peace prevailed. There is no foundation, the message said, for the report that there is any political disturbance in the province of Oriente. Peace is maintained throughout the Republic."

It became known today as a result of erroneous reports published in Cuba, the legation had received from the State Department definite assurances that American Ambassador Crowder had made no statement and would make none regarding support of the assembly of veterans and patriots which have been holding meetings in Cuba to discuss various questions.

The legation also asked for light on the attitude the U. S. might take towards supporting the Cuban government in the event of internal trouble. Legation officials were told that this government would not act as a matter of course, but would intervene in any hypothetical case.

By ARTHUR SEARS HENNING
WASHINGTON, Aug. 30.—Reports that Cuba is on the verge of a revolution, which might impel the United States to intervene for the maintenance of a stable government under the terms of the Platt amendment were given additional significance today by the action of President Zayas in clamping a censorship on press dispatches from the island.

Official advices indicate that Zayas is proceeding to take "silent and efficacious" means of suppressing the demonstrations of the Cuban veterans organizations which for several weeks have been stirring the people to protest against his regime.

Other evidences of unrest in the Caribbean region added to the picture of Uncle Sam's beat on all sides by his refractory warlike neighbor. The more clamorously demand independence word reached Washington that a commission, authorized by the Legislature has started for the capital to present pleas for the grant of a greater measure of self government to Porto Rico.

Renewed agitation against the continued occupation of Haiti is reported from Port au Prince, since the arrival of Governor Russell to confer with the administration. A warship recently was sent to the island of Santo Domingo, from which the United States is getting ready to retire, but the navy department denied any significance to the move.

The Virgin Islanders are again reported in a desperate plight as a result of the loss of commerce caused by the exclusion of ships having liquor aboard.

The demonstrations in Cuba which President Zayas has set out to suppress have been staged by the Veterans of the Cuban army of the following program:

1.—Opposition to the Lottery bill, recently passed by the Cuban Legislature.

2.—Opposition to certain features of the Tarafa bill for the consolidation of the Cuban railways.

3.—Demands for general improvement in government.

This program coincides exactly with that put forward by Ambassador Crowder as the representative of the United States. The latter bill in question has all along been opposed by General Crowder on the ground that it tended to produce widespread graft and political corruption.

The features of the Tarafa bill to which the veterans association objects are the same as those to which the American government took exception, namely, those provisions for the closing of certain so-called private ports, most of the stock of which is held by American interests. The American concerns object to the closing of these ports on the ground that it will result in the confiscation of millions of dollars worth of American property. The veterans are not particularly opposed to the consolidation of the railways, which from many points of view is desirable, but they do object to the closing of the private ports.

It was reported here tonight that an agreement had been reached between Colonel Jose M. Tarafa, sponsor of the railway merger bill, and the American sugar interests with whom he is now conferring in New York, as a result of which the bill would be modified to permit allowing the private ports to remain open. It is understood that a statement to this effect will be issued in New York tonight. If this report is true, the opposition of the state department to the bill would be removed, as would also that of the Cuban veterans organization, and it is to be assumed that the bill in amended form would be re-submitted to the legislature. The old bill had passed the House of Representatives but was held up in the Senate at the request of the American State Department.

Even should the objections of the

NORTH DANVILLE NIGHT SCHOOL IS SUBJECT OF TALK

The work of the North Danville night school was outlined by the Rev. O. A. Quinn yesterday at the semi-monthly meeting of the Lions Club at the Burton Hotel which was well attended.

The speaker went into the details of the venture enterprise which he began 12 or 13 years ago and which has grown to such large proportions. The purpose of his talk was to interest the members of the club in the work, not so much for the purpose of getting financial aid as to elicit and hold moral support, which he accounted as valuable as cash contributions.

Following Mr. Quinn's talk a number of Lions took occasion to endorse the work of the night school and to pay tribute to the unselfishness of the leader.

A colored trio furnished music throughout the luncheon, rendering for the most part, popular songs. The attendance prize yesterday was won by Jesse Benton. It proved to be a safety razor of a well known make. There were those mean enough to say that Jesse would never have gotten the prize had the referee not been selected by lottery. However, Jesse says from now on he is not going to miss a meeting.

H. G. Clark was appointed by President Pritchett to represent the Lions on the traffic committee, to be made up of representatives from the Rotary, Kiwanis and Lions Clubs.

"Beware Of Broadway!" Evelyn Nesbit's Advice To Girls

By BOB DORMAN

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J., Aug. 30.—Evelyn Nesbit, whose merry-go-round of life has whirled her from the greatest luxury to the deepest tragedy, even to death's door itself, is happy again, and smiling sometimes. Two years ago she saw only one way out—death. But quick medical attention thwarted her attempt at suicide.

Today, she sees only the future and hope ahead.

"I have learned my lesson," she says. "And it has been a bitter one. But I thank God that I can still laugh, can still enjoy life—that I was born a comedienne, and not a tragedienne."

"Otherwise I would not be here." As she sat in a corner of her famous boardwalk, where she is hostess, this woman whose name was once headlined on the front page of every newspaper in America, at the time of her connection with the famous Harry Thaw murder trial, revealed the philosophy of her life.

"It doesn't pay to do wrong," she says. "You can't cheat and get away with it. Some day the bill will have to be paid."

"Because payment is delayed once in a while some people think that they can get away with anything. But the time will come when the bill will be presented, and the interest will only be the larger for the delay."

"I know that the mistakes I made when I was young and thought that the world was mine to do with as I pleased, have cost me dear. Heavy as pain and sorrow has been my payment."

"But I have also learned that when persons have made payment for their wrongdoing that they can make their own future."

"Don't worry. The past is dead, stored for you to look at the future."

"There lies hope, no matter how dreadful the past; that is, providing

ILLNESS LIKELY TO STAY SUITS

(By Chicago Tribune Service)

NEW YORK, Aug. 29.—The legal proceedings intended completely to tie up the property of Princess Looft Parlaty at her home, 109 East 33rd street, will probably be held up for a few days because of the serious condition of the Princess. It was announced today by Dr. Edward Pisker, her physician, after a conference with members of the law firm directing the attachment proceedings.

Property valued at from $1,000,000 to $2,000,000 has already been attached and all that has prevented the removal of her furniture and other household goods is her condition. The Princess is said to have been living at the rate of $50,000 a year and once maintained a suite of fourteen rooms at the Plaza Hotel.

"I have talked with a member of the law firm of Beckman, Menken and Grice, in charge of the proceedings against the Princess," said Dr. Pisker, "and he has agreed to hold off further proceedings pending the improvement of her health."

A portrait painter of renown, the Princess has not fared well in recent years and she has had several unpleasant experiences in various hotels over unpaid board bills.

The Princess is defendant in suits to the amount of $213,000. The furnishings seized consist mainly of art objects, antiques, paintings of world famous men by the Princess, and several purported old master paintings, a Rembrandt, a Rubens and a Verdyck.

She has toured the country with an interesting retinue of servants, and generally an extensive collection of pet cub lions and leopards.

CUMBERLAND COURTHOUSE,

Aug. 29.—Testimony that the

Rev. E. S. Pierce had stated last April that R. O. Garrett, county clerk would "leave Cumberland pretty soon as a corpse," and that on a previous occasion he had declared there "would have to be another Hillsboro affair in Cumberland to clear things up" was given by defense witnesses today in the trial of R. O. Garrett for the alleged murder of the Baptist minister last June 5. These statements, with testimony designed to show that the minister appeared to have some knowledge of the shooting, was given by R. O. Garrett from the witness stand.

The witness also testified that he had seen the minister last May 3, together with the appearance on the stand of Larkin C. Garrett, jointly indicted with his brother for the Pierce killing, were the high spots of the third-day of the trial, which was given by defense witnesses. Special emphasis was laid on the testimony concerning the minister's connection with the Chandler shooting as it is the defense claim that that affair led directly to the fight in which Rev. Mr. Pierce was shot to death a month later.

Much of the testimony concerning the Chandler shooting had been given before and other than the statements attributed to Mr. Pierce by witnesses who had not previously appeared. The only sensational feature came during the testimony of Judge W. M. Smith, commonwealth's attorney for Cumberland county, called by the court. During cross examination by the defense, Judge Smith stated that shortly before the tragedy, he had gone to Mr. Pierce and advised him that "if he did not let up in his criticisms of the minister, he would have trouble with them."

Previously, he said, R. O. Garrett had come to him and asked what he, Garrett, could do to stop Pierce from talking about them, the Garrett brothers. He told Garrett, he said, to do nothing and he would talk to the minister.

All told, nine witnesses took the stand for the defense today and in addition the testimony of Dr. A. I. Dodson, who attended R. O. Garrett at a Richmond hospital after he had been shot, was read to the jury as given at the trial last month of L. C. Garrett. The cross examination of Judge Smith, begun yesterday, in which the prosecution sought break down his testimony given formally as its own witness, took all of the morning session.

Ellis Jones, the first witness, related the conversation he said he had at the Jones home with Mr. Pierce in which the departure of R. O. Garrett as a corpse was alleged to have been referred to. In discussing the matter with the minister, he said he told Mr. Pierce that Garrett said he would not "leave the county unless as a corpse." He quoted Mr. Pierce as replying:

"Well, he will leave the county pretty soon as a corpse." On cross examination he said he had not told anyone of the conversation which took place last April, other than members of his family, until last Monday, when he told L. C. Garrett about it. The witness said he had lived in Cumberland twenty years and attended one of Mr. Pierce's churches.

J. M. Furr, also a new witness in the case, related the conversation he said he had with Mr. Pierce about two years ago in which he declared the minister made the statement that "there would have to be another Hillsboro affair here to clear things up."

Spurgeon Smith, county deputy sheriff, testified to a conversation he had with Mr. Pierce concerning the Chandler shooting. "Mr. Pierce told me," the witness said, "that it was all a mistake, that the load of four (No. four shot with which Chandler was shot) was intended for Garrett and that the hand that pulled the trigger had pulled the wrong one. He said that the load of bird shot that was intended for some one else if he fired."

The witness said Mr. Pierce several times later mentioned the same subject to him and that finally he asked: "Parson, how do you know so much about it?" The minister replied, the witness said, "I don't have any idea."

Dark Rings Under Eyes

For the relief of dark rings and blood shot eyes there is nothing better than simple camphor, witchhazel, hydra-astia etc. etc. mixed in Lavoplin eye wash.

lowness of the life that is led there, the mockery of its loves, its friendships.

"But I suppose the flame will all ways attract the moth, and 'Broadway' will always draw its dupes. 'It a through with it' to tell you that."

Mr. Smith said he had told Commonwealth's Attorney Smith and his brother, the county treasurer, about the conversation, but had not related it to Robert Garrett until a few days ago.

Chandler, the victim of the ambush shooting May 3, repeated the story by Mr. Pierce who had had never before seen. The visit was late in May he said. The statement he testified that Mr. Pierce made to him was similar to that attributed to the minister by Deputy Smith. He also said the minister asked him what Mrs. L. C. Garrett was doing with him in an automobile late at night.

The witness said he resented this question and so told the minister, as Larkin Garrett was along with his wife at the time. He said he with Mrs. Garrett was returning from a meeting of tobacco growers and they were about two miles from Cumberland when they came to several logs laid across the road as an obstruction. He got out to remove them and had done so when there was a flash of flame from a nearby bush and he fell to the ground with a load of shot in his body.

Lee Franklin and A. Shiloh, who were with the victim of the Chandler shooting, testified to having removed the logs from the road as they passed.

John Harris, a Richmond police officer, was called as a fire arms expert and testified that the kind of bullets used in Mr. Pierce's gun could not have been fired from the reverse side by the Garretts.

Larkin Garrett was next called but his testimony was interrupted to permit Dr. J. Shelton Horsley of Richmond, to testify. Dr. Horsley operated to remove the bullet from R. O. Garrett's back. He described the course of the bullet, and said that had it not been deflected by a bone it would have proved fatal. The surgeon stated that if the principals in the shooting were standing as the defense claims the force at the time of the shooting it would have been impossible for Larkin Garrett to have shot his brother in the place the bullet struck.

The direct examination of Larkin Garrett was brief, compared to the stenographic cross examination conducted later by Acting Commonwealth's Attorney Milton P. Bonjant.

The younger Garrett stated that he had not known about the Chandler affidavit until a few minutes prior to the visit to the Pierce home on the morning of the tragedy. That as soon as his brother showed him the paper it occurred to them both to ask Mr. Pierce for an explanation of the salesman's allegations.

He said that the alleged reference of Mr. Pierce to Mrs. Larkin C. Garrett, quoted in the affidavit, had not been a serious one and hardly constituted an "insult," and that he had no thought of punishing Mr. Pierce for it when he went to the minister's home.

"When I said 'no gentleman would have made a remark like that about my wife' he hit me," Larkin said.

"When I said 'no gentleman would have made a remark like that about my wife' he hit me," Larkin said.

lowness of the life that is led there, the mockery of its loves, its friendships.

"But I suppose the flame will all ways attract the moth, and 'Broadway' will always draw its dupes. 'It a through with it' to tell you that."

Mr. Smith said he had told Commonwealth's Attorney Smith and his brother, the county treasurer, about the conversation, but had not related it to Robert Garrett until a few days ago.

Chandler, the victim of the ambush shooting May 3, repeated the story by Mr. Pierce who had had never before seen. The visit was late in May he said. The statement he testified that Mr. Pierce made to him was similar to that attributed to the minister by Deputy Smith. He also said the minister asked him what Mrs. L. C. Garrett was doing with him in an automobile late at night.

The witness said he resented this question and so told the minister, as Larkin Garrett was along with his wife at the time. He said he with Mrs. Garrett was returning from a meeting of tobacco growers and they were about two miles from Cumberland when they came to several logs laid across the road as an obstruction. He got out to remove them and had done so when there was a flash of flame from a nearby bush and he fell to the ground with a load of shot in his body.

Lee Franklin and A. Shiloh, who were with the victim of the Chandler shooting, testified to having removed the logs from the road as they passed.

John Harris, a Richmond police officer, was called as a fire arms expert and testified that the kind of bullets used in Mr. Pierce's gun could not have been fired from the reverse side by the Garretts.

Larkin Garrett was next called but his testimony was interrupted to permit Dr. J. Shelton Horsley of Richmond, to testify. Dr. Horsley operated to remove the bullet from R. O. Garrett's back. He described the course of the bullet, and said that had it not been deflected by a bone it would have proved fatal. The surgeon stated that if the principals in the shooting were standing as the defense claims the force at the time of the shooting it would have been impossible for Larkin Garrett to have shot his brother in the place the bullet struck.

The direct examination of Larkin Garrett was brief, compared to the stenographic cross examination conducted later by Acting Commonwealth's Attorney Milton P. Bonjant.

The younger Garrett stated that he had not known about the Chandler affidavit until a few minutes prior to the visit to the Pierce home on the morning of the tragedy. That as soon as his brother showed him the paper it occurred to them both to ask Mr. Pierce for an explanation of the salesman's allegations.

He said that the alleged reference of Mr. Pierce to Mrs. Larkin C. Garrett, quoted in the affidavit, had not been a serious one and hardly constituted an "insult," and that he had no thought of punishing Mr. Pierce for it when he went to the minister's home.

"When I said 'no gentleman would have made a remark like that about my wife' he hit me," Larkin said.

lowness of the life that is led there, the mockery of its loves, its friendships.

"But I suppose the flame will all ways attract the moth, and 'Broadway' will always draw its dupes. 'It a through with it' to tell you that."

Mr. Smith said he had told Commonwealth's Attorney Smith and his brother, the county treasurer, about the conversation, but had not related it to Robert Garrett until a few days ago.

"That started the fight." "He told how his brother, Robert took the shot away from Mr. Pierce, as the preacher came down from the porch, quoting his brother as saying, 'I don't intend to shoot you and I don't mean to let you shoot anybody else.'"

He said he was standing in the entrance to the yard when he heard the report of a revolver and saw his brother finish from Mr. Pierce's bullet.

"I shot him at once," said Larkin. "I fired the second shot. Mr. Pierce fired the first. My brother Robert fired just after I did."

Mr. Bonjant cross examined the witness for more than two hours on details of his testimony but elicited little that was new.

Larkin Garrett gave a history of his coming to Cumberland county and of entering into various business enterprises with his brother. They opened the first flour mill in 1913. Later they went into the mercantile business.

He told, on question from Harry M. Smith, of the farmers meeting and the shooting from ambush of A. M. Chandler.

"I saw the flash of a shot and I saw Chandler was shot," he said. "I feared my wife would be the next to be shot," he continued, "and I put her over on the other side of the car to shield her in event another shot was fired."

He said Robert came up later. "He had a small pistol with him and fired several times into the bushes in case anyone was hiding there," Larkin said.

Larkin then told of buying pistols from a Richmond concern. They carried them a mile or two from Cumberland when they came to several logs laid across the road as an obstruction. He got out to remove them and had done so when there was a flash of flame from a nearby bush and he fell to the ground with a load of shot in his body.

Coolidge Inherits Reorganizing Job

Big Federal Bureau Shake-Up, Long Harding's Task, All to Be Done Over.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 30.—The whole plan of reorganizing the Federal establishment at Washington, which occupied the better part of two years under President Harding's administration, will have to be worked over again and a revival of cold controversy of bureaus and divisions with overlapping duties is expected among Cabinet heads.

The scheme laid before Congress was tentative. Members of the Joint Commission of the House and Senate have planned hearings to go over all the ground covered. The draft was largely accredited to Walter F. Brown, who served as head of the commission in the capacity of President Harding's personal representative. It was far from satisfactory to the lawmakers. While some of the Cabinet differences had been smoothed over they were not eliminated.

Agricultural interests are concerned over the wishes of Secretary Hoover to have the Bureau of Markets transferred from the Department of Agriculture to the Department of Commerce. At present its information is gathered about crops chiefly. Farmers all over the country are interested in the reports, which go out by wireless as well as by telephone, telegraph and mail. They are wondering whether the information of peculiar aid to them will not be minimized if given out through the Department of Commerce.

Efforts to transfer the Bureau of Roads to the new Department of Public Welfare and the Bureau of Forestry to the Interior Department are also giving considerable concern to the farmers. Activities under these two branches constitute a great part of the work of the Department of Agriculture. Having the supervision of expenditures of millions of dollars, they are in a position of great power and add prestige to the department under which they work.

Efforts to transfer the Prohibition Enforcement Bureau from the Treasury Department are sure to be continued when Congress meets. The Anti-Saloon League opposed original efforts to place this under the Department of Justice.

According to students of the preliminary plan left administration of Alaskan affairs open until after the return of President Harding from his visit.

Come To Blows On Street Over Debt

Argument over a debt this morning led to passage of blows between R. D. Vernon and Nick Pollok, the fight taking place on lower Main street about 10:30 o'clock. The combatants were separated by Dr. G. W. Johnson before any great damage was done through blows by the fists. Vernon sustained a cut on the forehead when he stepped back off the sidewalk and fell to the pavement. Warrants were issued against the two men by Officer P. G. Towell, who was on the scene. The case will be heard tomorrow morning in the mayor's court.

The argument leading up to the fight was over a debt. Pollok is alleged to have made with Vernon; it is said. Pollok is said to have owed Vernon a sum of money. Vernon is said to have turned the bill over to the combatants to collect. The two men met by chance in front of McFall's store and Pollok brought the matter up, this leading to the argument and finally to blows. Just who struck the first blow was not ascertained.

ESTIMATES ARE MADE

WASHINGTON, Aug. 29.—Tentative estimates of the War Department for river and harbor improvements during the next fiscal year it was said today, will total more than the $27,000,000 requested for the present year, but less than the $56,000,000 appropriated by Congress. Details of the work planned were withheld pending final decisions.

FRENCH GIRL INVADES IRELAND AS "HUMAN QUESTION MARK"

MADemoiselle SIMONE TERRY.

BY MILTON BRONNER (Special to The Bee.)

LONDON, Aug. 30.—The best picture of the tragic events of the past two years in Ireland and of the men who played the star parts, has not been painted by any Irishman, nor Briton, nor American, but by a little, slender, 20-year-old French girl—Mademoiselle Simone Terry.

Daughter of the well-known editor of a liberal Parisian newspaper and herself an expert reporter, she was for months a conspicuous figure in the melancholy streets of the Irish capital.

If I saw a crowd gathered around a review of Free State troops and hastened to see the show, Mademoiselle Simone was sure to be there ahead of me.

If I had an appointment with a cabinet minister and had to wait past the hour, I was sure to find out that the French girl was the cause of it. She was the human question mark, she was ever present, this bright-eyed miss who felt herself so much at home in Ireland. And the result of all this is embodied in the little book, "En Irlande," just published in Paris.

Mlle. Terry deftly plucks the halo from the brow of De Valera. Just as artistically she glides the laurels on the brows of Arthur Griffith and Michael Collins, the great heroes of the closing phases of the fight for Irish freedom. And she fills her book with interesting anecdotes, with pthetic little facts, with vivid pen pictures.

For instance, how much she reveals when she tells us that poor Griffith, when he died so suddenly, had only one penny in his pocket—two cents. It was typical of the glorious poverty of the man who gave his whole life to Ireland.

In her writing this French girl has all the neatness that is characteristic of her countrymen. She tells us volumes when she quotes De Valera as saying:

"The country is there for the taking—take it!"

And Michael Collins replying: "The nation is there for the making—make it!"

One could go on quoting plums from the little blue-covered volume. But the best can merely be told about.

Kevin O'Higgins, minister of the interior, is sitting in his office being interviewed by Mademoiselle Simone. He expects to be asked all kinds of questions about the condition of the country. And this French girl reporter, opening her brown eyes wide, innocently purrs at him in her French-English:

"Mr. Minister, is there any danger of your making yourself dictator of storm-tossed Ireland?"

It's no wonder she wrote a rich book. No mere male reporter would have asked similar questions—and lived.

Work Begun At Leaksville On Marshall-Field Storage Plant

(Special to The Bee.)
LEAKSVILLE, N. C., Aug. 30.—The first definite steps have been taken here looking to the construction of a large storage warehouse for the products of the Marshall Field Company of Chicago, which are made in this section. The two story frame warehouse near the depot at Spring street is already being raised to make room for the gigantic concrete structure which is to take its place. This is the storage warehouse which Danville and other cities sought to win when they became known some months ago that the Chicago corporation intended erecting a central shipping and receiving plant for its various industries in Virginia and North Carolina.

While the contract has not been definitely signed, it was learned today at the offices of the Leaksville Lumber Company that a representative of the Marshall Field Corporation was here on Saturday and reached a verbal agreement with officials of the local concern to start immediately raising the old cotton storage house, the definite understanding being reached that the formal contract for the building of the new concrete structure would be signed within the next few days.

Two Sunday School Picnics On Today

Two Sunday School picnics are being held today. An unusually large crowd left this morning on a special train to Lynchburg, where the Cabell Street church is holding its annual picnic. The day will be spent in the Hill city, the train returning to Danville tonight.

The Grace M. E. church is holding its annual picnic on the playgrounds in Rockingham county near Reidsville. Eight truck loads of members of the church and Sunday school were taken early this morning to the scene and will remain there until late this afternoon. The program includes all kinds of athletic events such as races of various kinds, baseball games and other events. A debate will also be a feature.

Good Morning Judge!

At six o'clock this morning it looked as though the mayor would have no official business at the courthouse in the way of cases being tried, but police officers who had scouted in vain throughout the night were given a tip about sunrise of an affair which would involve four negroes, who had been participants in a merry party last night at the home of Martha Stevens, colored, on Newton street. Officers O. W. Bates and O. S. Mayberry were sent to the place, aroused Martha Stevens, Ethel Bell, Percy Halston and William Norman, colored from their slumbers and brought them to jail. Each drew a fine of $21 and costs when given a hearing.

The only other case on the docket was continued. It was a charge of exceeding the speed limit against Jack Turner.

It was stated in this column yesterday that a warrant against Carl Mangrum charging him with allowing his cows to run at large was held up pending a decision. In fact Mangrum drew a fine of $2.50 and costs, a total of $4, and a telephone message from his home this morning insisted that this fact be made known, also that the persons who complained of the cows feasting in their gardens were not neighbors, but were residents a quarter of a mile away. Mangrum claimed that some typical "Peck's bad boys" had cut the wire and he did not know the animals ran at large.

NEXT WEEK'S WEATHER.
Although the week has been cool and rather cloudy, farm crops have continued in good to excellent condition, good growth of corn and tobacco has made the outlook for those crops very encouraging. Preparation of the soil for seeding has gone forward under favorable conditions and early sown wheat is coming up nicely. Pastures and meadows are good and grass for stock is plentiful. Sweet potatoes and peanuts show excellent growth and vegetables and truck crops are now more plentiful. The second crop of potatoes in the eastern shore section is coming up. Wheat threshing is practically finished and all reports indicate a fair yield and excellent quality. Apple prospects continue good for well developed fruit of very good quality.

(Special to The Bee.)
CUMBERLAND COUTHOUSE, Va., Aug. 30.—Robert Garrett was the first witness called to the stand this morning. Mrs. Robert Garrett will follow him. This will complete the case for the defense. L. O. Wendenburg said this morning, R. E. Byrd will cross examine R. O. Garrett. The prosecution will put on Levi Pierce, brother of the slain minister, in rebuttal. Judge W. M. Smith will probably be recalled to the stand.

APATHY AND THE LAW

The expression on the question of law enforcement presented in a report on this subject by a special committee to the American Bar Association now in session in Minneapolis
is one which will receive thoughtful consideration among the people of this country at a time when serious
thought is being given to obedience
to the law or the growing lack of it
which seems manifest to be the case.
The meat of the report is contained in the following two paragraphs:
"Behind every defect in the enforcement of our laws, more dangerous than any other factor in accounting for the number of crimes committed in the country, is the apathy
and indifference of the American people."
"The first great work to be accomplished in bringing about a better
enforcement of law must be the awakening of the public to a clear sense
of the situation and of their responsibility for it. Improvement in our laws
can accomplish little unless accompanied by a determination on the part of our citizens to have those laws
enforced."

That "apathy and indifference of the American people" is responsible
for many of the existing evils of today
and certainly in no greater instance
than in the matter of law enforcement.
The same indifference complained of
is not confined to obedience of the law—it is responsible for the very
character of the laws so multitudinous and so frequently complained of. Just as long as indifference and the failure to meet responsibility is shown on the part of the electorate
which settles the choice of the men
who make the laws it will be reflected in even larger measure as result of the character of the laws which are thrust upon the people who have themselves to blame.

DE PACHMANN AND THE GENTLE
VIRTUE

The egotism of artists has often
been written about and many explanations have been offered for their
deviation from the path of modesty.
A first-class example of exalted opinion of self is furnished through the arrival in this country of de Pach-
mann, the famous Russian pianist
whose mental aberration has made him something of a comic figure on
the concert platform though the exquisite of his playing completely outshines his eccentricities. De Pachmann has been known to exchange
common places with these members
of his audience seated on the first row while engaged in the disastrous rendering of a famed sonata, quite oblivious of the rest of his hearers.
Perhaps this mental attitude explains
the extraordinary interview he gave
out in New York while the liner Majestic was waiting to be berthed the other day. News reporters who are accustomed to "cover" incoming liners
and to chronicle the reactions on his question by the great, singled out
the Russian at once and he entertained them with a little and to the great chagrin of the many who were treated to a "concert" later. He proceeded to tell of his "great" experience of the "transformation" of a great pianist into a "great" pianist
unblushingly and without a single qualification. In fact he repeated
several times as fast as lightning
any doubt on the subject—"I am the greatest player." Paderewski, he said, is "a good pianist but not a great pianist." Busoni and Rosenthal being bracketed with the Poles. When Pachmann was mentioned by the enquiring reporters de Pachmann
threw up his hands in holy horror
and a painful "mon dieu." He chafed himself as a rank outsider. The whole tenor of his elaboration on these as-

ounding assertions was that there is really only one great pianist in the world today and that is de Pachmann.
The strange part of this unusual self
appraisal is that it comes from a man who is 75 years of age and one who has the distinguishing characteristic
among artists—that of being so religious as to recite his pater noster
twenty times a day.
The great beauty of such exalted
opinion is the saving of expense in the matter of press agent. The venerable
—and let us add with a measure of charity, the venerated—pianist needs
no outside assistance in the gentle art
of self proclamation.

SPANISH TROOPS
START MUTINY

(By The Chicago Tribune).
MADRID, Aug. 29.—A first hand
account of the mutiny of the Spanish
regiments embarking for Morocco
reached here Monday after three days of misleading communiques.
Last Thursday the transport Bar-
celo stood by to take on detachments of Navarre and Valencia regiments,
totaling 1,400, quartered at Segalerra. When ordered to leave the garrison the entire 1,400, at a given moment, when they were about half way out the Segalerra gate, fired
into the air and cried, "long live rebellion. We are not going to Morocco."

A group of officers and the guard
attacked the gate which was immediately closed on the rest of the troops. The troops inside the barracks attacked the gates and shot
seven officers.
Before the barracks groups of
women stationed themselves, shouting "don't go to Morocco. They are taking you to your death!"
Machine guns were brought from an artillery park and they swept the street in front of the barracks, but
the insurgents, who were in complete
control of the city, returned the fire,
killing and wounding a number of the machine gun detachment.

The insurgents were in complete control of the Montijo quarter by night, and they paraded through the Plaza de la Constitucion, the main square of Malaga. The hospital
worked day and night on the wounded.
The next day reinforcements arrived and the new troops soon brought order into the mutiny. The 1,400 insurgents were then taken barked on the transport Barcelo
where some of them—the number was not given—were executed and handed at sea.
This scene was duplicated at Seville on August 29.
The war office minimized the importance of these events, saying that only "sixty men were engaged." Eye witnesses state that rioting was
on for twenty-four hours and that the entire population was in sympathy with the mutineers. All telegraphic information as to the mutineers was suppressed Saturday at the government telegraphic offices.

BOMBARD REBEL BAY STRONGHOLD

(By Chicago Tribune Service).
MADRID, Aug. 29.—Aydr sector
of the rebels' stronghold in the rear of Alhucemas Bay, was bombarded by aeroplanes yesterday and today while the army, under General Marzo—commander in chief sent out
from Madrid—is preparing next week's drive.
Two Spanish planes returning from a bombardment this morning were brought down with violence just inside the Spanish Lines. Captain Luis de Sagarra, was killed. All vessels, including Captain Gano and Lieutenants Jimenez and Poa were disabled.
The Marquis de Alhucemas is making every effort to prevent his government from hitting a political
crisis in the midst of preparations
for a new drive in Morocco. A cabinet meeting took place today, at which Minister of Foreign Affairs Alba and Senor Silveira, high commissioner
in Morocco were expected to resign,
was postponed twenty-four hours in order to allow Silveira time to arrive and take part.
The Moroccan governor has just
ended a violent quarrel with General Marzo, the new commander in chief,
and it is reported that he has just announced in the press that he is coming to resign. But the Tribune is given to understand that the Premier will make strong representations to him and that the government
intends capturing the island of Alhuc-emas, although an advance was made
last week which scored some successes.

THE AFTERTHOUGHT

After this life,
With all its scheming,
Is not better asleep—
And dreaming?
He dreamed through the world
And all that's here,
And he reads his dreams
In the shadows there.
Life is a dream, and the world
Is a cold world's scheming—
And dreaming?
After this life—
Is a weary way.
For those who dreamers
From day to day:
Poverty man,
Or with riches to spare,
It's all to the shadows,
And dreaming there.
Life is a dream, and the world
Is a cold world's scheming—
And dreaming?
Is he not better
Asleep and dreaming?

COMMUNIST SHOCKS COMMONS

LONDON, Aug. 29.—The communist ideas of J. T. W. Newbold
the Scottish Communist in the House of Commons, have had relatively insignificant effect on that stage today,
but the same cannot be said of his weather dress. The House received a profound shock during the recent heat wave when Mr. Newbold appeared without a shirt, without a vest, and with a shirt unbuttoned and
open at the neck.
The Communist M. P. walked to his seat in the House and some of the Labour Party members gave a cheer in approval of his audacity.
Prior to this entrance Commander
Kennedy held the center of attention by appearing in the House in a shirt and a $100,000 palm beach

ST. LOUIS, Aug. 29.—The United States Company will spend about $1,000,000 in equipment for its new plant in this city. The new plant will be built at a cost of $500,000. Forty more will be added
in 1924. New buildings and alternations will cost $12,000. The total program up to the end of next year
requires expenditure of $2,847,261.

THE ISLE OF RETRIBUTION
By EDISON MARSHALL
ILLUSTRATED BY
E. J. BROWN & COMPANY, 1923

THESE manifold powers of circumstances were in conspiracy
against Ned Cornet this late August afternoon. No detail was important in itself. It had been drizzling slowly and mournfully, but drizzle is not uncommon in Seattle.
Ned Cornet had been passing the time pleasantly in the Totem Club,
on Fourth Street, doing nothing in particular, nothing exceedingly bad
or good or even unusually diverting;
but such was quite a customary practice with him. Finally, Cornet's special friend, Rodney Coburn, had just returned from one of his hundred sojourns in far places—this time from an especially attractive salmon
stream in Canada.

The two young men had met in Coburn's room at the Totem Club,
and the steward had gone thither
with tall glasses and ice. Coburn had not returned empty-handed from Canada. Partly in celebration of the return, and partly because of the superior quality of the goods that had accompanied him, his friend Ned raised his afternoon limit from two powerful pre-dinner cocktails to no
less than four richly amber whiskeys
and sodas. Thus their meeting was suspicious, and on leaving the club,
about seven, it came about that Ned Cornet met the rain.

It was not enough to bother him.
He didn't even think about it. It was only a lazy, smoky drizzle that despised the shadows of falling twi-
ght and blurred the lights in the street. Ned Cornet had a fire within that more or less occupied his thoughts.

In a space of time so short that it
resembled some belated incident
in a dream, Ned found himself
still at his wheel, the car crouching
in the street and the front wheels
almost touching the curb, a terrible
and ghastly sobriety upon him.
Something had happened. He had gone into a perilous slide at the corner of Fourth and Madison, the car
had slid sickeningly out of his control, and at the wrong instant a dark
shape, all too plainly another automobile, had lurched out of the murk
of the rain.

Ned Cornet had had automobiles at
his command long before it was safe
for him to have his hands on them.
When cold sober he drove rather too
fast, none too carefully, but had an almost incredible mastery over his
car. He knew how to pick his wheel tracks over bumpy roads, and he knew the exact curve that a car
could take with safety in rounding a corner. Even now, in the crisis that had just been, he had handled his car like the veteran he was. The wonder was not that he had hit the other car, but rather, considering the speed with which he had come, that he should continue to remain on his feet, but little damaged, instead of being shattered into kindling and dust. Nevertheless it was not yet
time to receive congratulations from spectators. There had been serious consequences enough. He was suddenly face to face with the fact that in his haste to get home for dinner
he had very likely obliterated a human life.

There was a curious, huddled heap
on the dim pavement, just beyond
the small car he had struck. It was a girl; she lay very still, and the face half covered by the arm seemed very white and lifeless. And blessed by a terror such as he never known
in all his wasted years, Ned halted,
wheed, and fell to his knees at her side.

The car he had struck was one of the thousands of "finneys" of which he had so often spoken with contempt.

"Of course I'm going to pay."
"The doctor says only about twenty dollars for a skin. And it doesn't seem to be even damaged. Of course it will have to be cleaned. To save you the embarrassment I see giving in your face, I'll gladly send the bill to you if you like."
In the bright street light he looked up, studying her face. Her skin had a healthy freshness, pink like the roses, pink of certain quality
with flowers and the best of the girl's features that wholly suited his appreciating eye. This girl in his car was in her early twenties—over,
rather than under—of medium
height, with the slender strength of
an expert swimmer, yet her beauty
was that of a child.
He couldn't tell, at first, in just what way beauty. Other girls had fresh skin, bright eyes, smiling lips
and masses of dark lustrous hair,
and some of them even had the simplicity of good manners. Ned had a quick, sure mind, and for a moment
he mused over his wheel as he tried to puzzle it out.
But soon after this Ned Cornet
caught himself with a whispered
cath. He was positively miserable.
The excitement, the fear of death
to tragedy, the influence of the liquor
manifesting itself once more in his veins were making him stare and think like a silly fool. The girl was a particularly attractive shopgirl or factory worker, strong and athletic
for all her appealing slenderness,
dressed pretty enough to make
considerable headway in the crowd
of his friends who went in for that sort of thing, but he, Ned Cornet, had other interests. The game he had upon her was suddenly indifferent.
They were almost at their destination now, and he did not see the sudden decline of her mood in response to his dying interest. Simu-lative as a flower to sunlight, she was in a moment that a beautiful
of caste had dropped down between them. She was silent the rest of the way.
"Would you mind telling me what you do in the way of work, I mean?" he asked her, at her door.
"My father has a business that employs many girls. There might be a chance."
"I can do almost anything with a needle, thank you," she told him with perfect frankness. "Fitting, hemstitching, embroidery—I could make a dozen other things."
"We employ dozens of seam-stresses and fitters. I suppose I can reach you here—after work hours.
I'll keep you in mind."

An instant later he had taken her
good night and driven away, little dreaming that through the open
panes of the door, her lustrous hair
eyes had followed the red spark that was his tail-light till it disappeared
in the deepening gloom.

NED CORNET kept well within
the speed laws as he sped back
to his father's beautiful home
on Queen Anne Hill. He was none too well pleased with himself, and his thoughts were busy. There would be some sort of a scene with Godfrey Cornet, the gray man whose self-assured wealth would ultimately settle for the damages to the "finney" and the effort to the humili-plicity—perhaps only a frown, a moment's coldness about the lips, but a scene nevertheless.

No one could look at Godfrey Cornet and doubt that he was the veteran of many wars. The battles he had fought had been those of economic stress, but they had scarred
him none the less.

Every one of his fine features told the same story. His mouth was hard and grim, but it could melt
with the kindest, most boyish pleasure on occasion. His nose was like an eagle's beak, his face was lean with never a sagging muscle, his eyes, coal black, had each bright
point as of blades of steel. People always wondered at his trim, erect form, giving him the sign of an advanced years. Few could have
with which he had surrounded his wife and son, he himself had always lived frugally: simple food, sufficient
exercise, the most personal and detailed contact with his business.

Party For Miss Bullington.

The girls of the Y. W. C. A. Industrial Club gave a delightful party Wednesday evening in honor of Miss Irene Bullington, at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Dewey Lewis, Richmond avenue, which was in the nature of a surprise party for Miss Irene Bullington, who is leaving for her home in North Carolina, where she is engaged to be married to Rev. William L. Tucker, who was recently announced.

When the guest of honor arrived to spend, as she supposed, a quiet evening with a few friends, the guests were all assembled in the living room and all was in readiness for the mock marriage which followed.

A tall, white arch, back of which stood the minister, Miss Mary Ruffin, grouped on one side of the improvised altar were the dame of honor, Miss Anna Williams. Best man, Miss Elsie Brown, bridesmaid, Misses Mary Gorman and Minnie Egan, groomsmen, Misses Beatrice Petty and Ruth Haden. Flower girl, Melissa Goss.

As Miss Sallie Young at the piano, and Pearl Young, violin accompanist, played "Mizziz Lewis" in fine voice, "Believe" while the bride, Miss Mabel Williams and the groom, Miss Mabel Cole, preceded by the ring bearer, entered from the hall and proceeded from an improvised aisle to the altar where the minister, in a few words, pronounced the marriage vows. The bride's gown was of white georgette with veil of net arranged around the face with a tiny frill. The costume of the attendants was in keeping with conventional style for such occasions.

The ring bearer, little Miss Irene Bullington Lewis, namesake of the honoree, is two-months old and was borne in by her mother on a swan pillow, while in her hand she held a ring, which was the bride's ring used in the ceremony.

A reception followed around a table on which stood a cardboard church and the guest of honor was invited to enter at once upon her duties as bride, she was escorted to the altar where she will soon be expected to assume. After a little investigation she found entrance at the top and removing it, discovered a wonderful collection of miscellaneous articles and the heart of every housekeeper.

The guests were then ushered into the dining room which was all aglow with the light of many candles and beautifully decorated with fern and white flowers. Punch and cake course was served as the closing feature to an evening filled with happiness and delight for all those who were so fortunate as to belong to the Girls' Industrial Club of the Y. W. C. A.

Party For Miss Bullington.
The girls of the Y. W. C. A. Industrial Club gave a delightful party Wednesday evening in honor of Miss Irene Bullington, at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Dewey Lewis, Richmond avenue, which was in the nature of a surprise party for Miss Irene Bullington, who is leaving for her home in North Carolina, where she is engaged to be married to Rev. William L. Tucker, who was recently announced.

When the guest of honor arrived to spend, as she supposed, a quiet evening with a few friends, the guests were all assembled in the living room and all was in readiness for the mock marriage which followed.

A tall, white arch, back of which stood the minister, Miss Mary Ruffin, grouped on one side of the improvised altar were the dame of honor, Miss Anna Williams. Best man, Miss Elsie Brown, bridesmaid, Misses Mary Gorman and Minnie Egan, groomsmen, Misses Beatrice Petty and Ruth Haden. Flower girl, Melissa Goss.

As Miss Sallie Young at the piano, and Pearl Young, violin accompanist, played "Mizziz Lewis" in fine voice, "Believe" while the bride, Miss Mabel Williams and the groom, Miss Mabel Cole, preceded by the ring bearer, entered from the hall and proceeded from an improvised aisle to the altar where the minister, in a few words, pronounced the marriage vows. Your Health

BY DR. CLIFFORD C. ROBINSON

A pair of tired feet is most discouraging. But with a little effort you can reduce this inconvenience to a minimum.

A daily foot bath is of great help. Use lukewarm water and soap. A gentle massage is beneficial. After bathing use cold water.

Change hose daily. Tight supporters impede circulation and should be avoided. Wear shoes that are large enough to be comfortable.

If you will give the feet a little exercise (your feet work hard all day long) you will notice a great improvement. While spraying them with cold water, move them up and down and sideways. Wiggle your toes. If your feet want to perspire—let them. Use a boric acid solution or any mild germicide for any foot odor.

The odor is caused by the development of bacteria, which easily succumb to a germicidal lotion.

People who are flat-footed and those who have bunions require the special services of a competent orthopedist. Bunions are caused usually by tight shoes. Flat feet are sort of a natural tendency in some individuals, but there are other causes.

You will notice there has been no mention of corns. There's a reason. Take care of your feet and you will have no corns.

ful death of a kinsman in the North Carolina courts.

The defense, it is said, would meet the issue on its merits if the case were to develop in the federal court here by undertaking to show that Mrs. Kirks was in a moribund condition when admitted to the hospital and that the operation was performed as a last resort.

The plaintiff claimed that her appendix had ruptured before being admitted and that the peritoneal cavity had become so badly infected that physicians recognized upon operating that she had no chance to survive. The further defense would be made, it is declared, that the patient received the benefit of remedies known to medical science to spare her life.

The allegation that Dr. Robinson left the city and the innuendo that in so doing was negligent will be met by the assertion that the physician went to Montreat, N. C., to visit his wife and child and that the Kirks case was left in charge of his co-worker, Dr. Crumpler, who had been familiar with Dr. Robinson's post operative treatment for several years past.

Since the statement made by a member of counsel for the plaintiff that the case was one involving malpractice, there has been some speculation as to what definite allegation would be made. The bill falls to set forth any charge which would involve the professional integrity of the physicians or any suspicion of unethical act which is sometimes unfairly imputed by the use of the word "malpractice."

ROAD REPORT COMPLETED.
RICHMOND, Va., Aug. 29.—The report of the special good roads committee of the Virginia bankers' association, appointed at the annual convention in Richmond recently, has been completed and is being printed and distributed to Virginia bankers.

The grounds of defense are two fold, that the action was not instituted within a year from the date of the alleged cause for action and that the plaintiff being an administrator, deriving his authority solely from the courts of North Carolina, that he is without power to sue in the Virginia courts. A number of cases sustaining the latter contention and cited from the Supreme Court records of several States are cited. One of these is that of Hall against the Southern Railway, Hall being a Danville man, who, the North Carolina Supreme Court held, was not permitted to sue for wrongdoings in treatment, it being set forth that Dr. Julian Robinson left the city following the operation and returned a few days before she died.

LETTER FROM LESLIE PRES-COTT TO ALICE HAMILTON

DEAR LITTLE SISTER:

I have been intending to write to you for the last few days but after you have been ill quite a time things get at sixes and sevens if you are the one who has been running the house.

There is so much I want to say to you, dear, that I don't know where to begin. I wonder if you appreciate what a wonderful time you are having, practically doing just what you want.

When mother let me go abroad I went with a whole lot of other girls and we had two old maid school teachers who kept strict watch over us. One always went ahead in the Louvre and came back to explain that we couldn't go into certain rooms for fear we would see the eudes.

And here you are, over in Paris, going anywhere you please. Although you haven't told me I have a hunch that you have been pleased to go to Montmartre and all through the Latin Quarter with only a very young man to pilot you and a little around.

Alice, dear, I note what you say about Karl's being more intellectual and having more heart and more money than Jack, consequently you wondered why I loved Jack. Although I do not assent to any of your contentions, yet if they were all true I would probably be loving Jack just the same.

One thing you haven't learned yet, little sister, which is probably because you have never been in love. When you do fall in love you will understand people do not love other people because they are intellectual; because they are handsome or because they are even kind. You just fall in love. That's all my dear.

Sometimes I think the old philosophical idea of Empedocles, of "natural love," by which he means those sympathies which attract a stone to the earth and make rivers flow to the sea, can be applied to men and women. Two people just naturally gravitate to each other. It is a chemical affinity—the thing that makes oxygen attract hydrogen. Anyway, you cannot give any better reason.

You may go on and on for a long time. People may think they love you. You may think you love others. Because some chemical force in you seeks to unite with some chemical force in another, you may think you are in love, but you soon find out in neither is that force attractive enough to overcome certain thoughts and idiosyncrasies and the thrill dies.

All at once two people meet. Every force within one seeks and unites with the similar force in the other. At last you know love.

These two persons need not even be of the same tastes. They may dislike each other very much, but they will be what people generally call "in love with each other."

It is a queer sort of feeling, my dear. Sometimes a man or woman never attains real love. They accept substitutes. It is very probable I had not met Jack I would never have known the love I felt for Karl was not the real love, the great love that now fills my life. I would probably have married Karl.

On it was, the moment I saw Jack I was taken directly off my feet. And now that I have my little home, my husband and my baby, I am afraid I shall too good to be true. Honestly, Alice, I wake up in the middle of the night my heart going piapap, and I seem to be waiting for something to enter into my Eden and say it waste. I have been and am gay happy.

Ice Company Turns Eyes On City Power

Local Corporation Gives Consideration to Following Lead Set by Street Car Company—Contract Is Submitted for Scrutiny.

That the Danville Ice Company is giving consideration to the advisability of purchasing current from the city instead of utilizing the water power of Dan River became known this morning. D. A. Overbey, president of the Danville Ice Company who was questioned regarding it stated that nothing conclusive had been decided on though he said he had been giving the whole question serious consideration for more than a month. He pointed out that before anything definite could be done the stockholders of the company would have to be heard from.

The directors held a meeting yesterday afternoon and discussed the matter in several particulars. Mr. Overbey in answering the question put him regarding the intentions of the ice company added that whatever steps were taken would be towards manufacturing better ice and giving better service.

The present phase of deliberations may be said to be one of investigation. It is known however, that the city has submitted to Mr. Overbey a copy of the contract which the Danville Traction and Power Company signed, this providing for the furnishing of city current for a ten year period.

Other interesting developments might be expected. It is possible that the Riverside and Dan River Cotton Mill Co., Inc., may be interested in securing full control of the water power on Dan River—one-twelfth part of which is now used by the ice company at its factory on the southside where the refrigerating machinery is operated by hydraulic or water power. Were the ice company to decide to purchase city power then in all probability it would sell its present riparian rights to the mills, which would thereby obtain not only full river rights but increased motive power in those mills deriving part of their motive power from water wheels.

Purchase of city power also would render unnecessary the utilization of the boilers in the North Danville power plant of the Danville Traction

Mighty Healing Power of Peterson's Ointment

"I wish I could publish all the grateful letters I get every week," says Peterson. "I don't believe anyone on this earth has such a happy time at work as I have. All I do is make Peterson's Ointment and read letters like these that come right from the heart."

"I had an ulcer on my ankle—had it 26 years and could not get it healed. For the last six years I had several doctors. I got one box of your ointment and it almost healed it and it was entirely healed before I had used the second one. I don't think there is a better remedy on earth." Mrs. J. C. Henderson, 220 Sprague Street, Winston-Salem, N. C.

Peterson's Ointment is just as good for piles as it is for old sores. It stops itching of eczema almost instantly. The isn't anything in the way of pimples or face blemishes that it won't chase away, and for sore feet, chafing, sunburn, scalds, cuts and bruises there is nothing so sure or speedy. 35c, 60c, $1.00, $2.50, $5.00—adv.

company and would increase the revenue to the city. Recent discussions on the city's power capacity reveal that the heaviest load demanded by the ice company would come in the summer months when the demand for current for industrial plants, particularly the tobacco factories, is very low, thus affording a desirable contract for the city during the "dull" period.

It was made very plain at the ice company offices this morning, however, that while careful consideration is being given to the proposed step it is in a purely tentative stage and it may be thirty or sixty days before any definite conclusions have been reached.

DIRECTORS MEET NEXT THURSDAY

The directors of the Piedmont League will meet one week from today, Thursday, September 6 at Greensboro to decide the "Harris dispute" according to an announcement just made by President W. G. Brundage, in the Durham Sun. The meeting centers entirely around the alleged violation of the class ruling by the Danville club, and was to have been held several weeks ago but has been continuously put off for indefinite reasons given as the "inability to get all the magnates together at one time."

Despite the opinion of practically every sport writer in the loop, managers of several clubs, and the fans in general there are those who are inclined to think more games should be taken from the Danville club because of the suspension of Harris. This view is altogether lopsided and is not held by many around the circuit as there is very little basis for such a decision. In fact one or two sport writers representing other cities in the league can't understand just why the one game was taken when the same condition cropped up in Durham during the first half and no "pound of flesh" was demanded. "Should the meeting not be postponed again?" Owner-Manager Murphy will have a "hot time" next Thursday as there are at least two clubs who "have it in for Danville" and are determined to see them ousted from the top in one way or the other. Murphy should have company in his journey over to Greensboro for the meeting if for nothing else than to demonstrate to the officials that the city is squarely behind the club and believes Murphy has been playing the game according to all that is fair in diamond play.

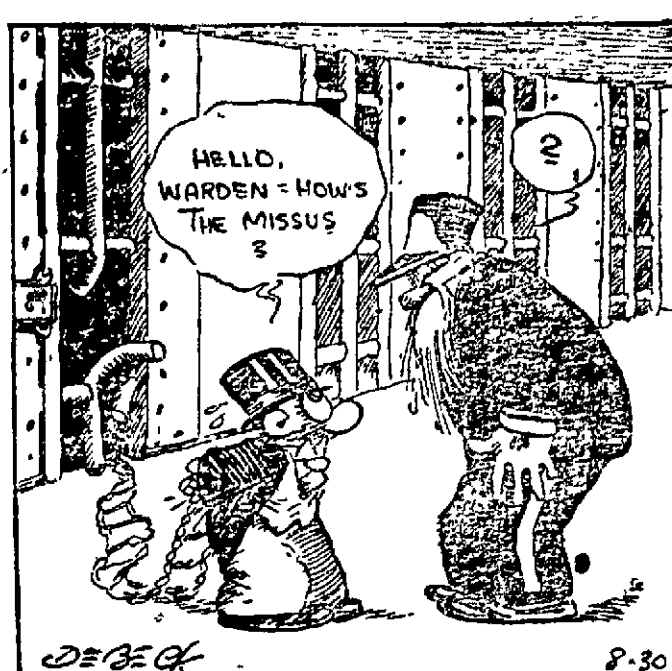

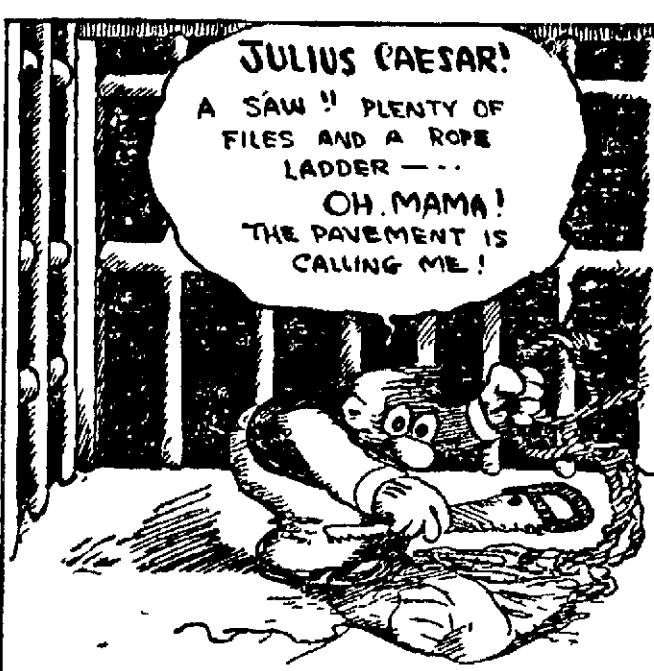

ROCKNE TUTORS FOOTBALL COACHES FROM 20 STATES

NOTRE DAME, Ind., Aug. 29.—Approximately 100 football coaches are enrolled in the coaching school being conducted at the University of Notre Dame by Knute K. Rockne, director of athletics. Only football is being studied by the men under the direction of the man who generally is accredited with having been the leader in the development of the forward pass. No fundamentals of the game will be left out, according to Rockne. The class will be in session throughout August. Twenty states are represented by those attending the school. More than 20 college mentors are studying under the Notre Dame leader with the hope that they, too, may absorb some of his ability to develop winning football eleven. High school football instructors also are going in for the class, men from 37 schools being in attendance. Coach Rockne is devoting four hours a day to the class. Half of the time is given to backboard work and two hours to practical exhibitions on the gridiron.

PROPOSE INCOME TAX REVISION

BY ARTHUR SEARS HENNING
By The Chicago Tribune.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 29.—Revision of income taxes downward all the way from the smallest taxable incomes to the biggest will be proposed to Congress at the December session by Representative Martin B. Madden (Republican), Illinois, who is slated to continue as chairman of the House Committee on Appropriations.

Following a conference he had with Secretary of the Treasury Mellon today Mr. Madden said that his study of the question had convinced him that immediate reduction of taxes is feasible in view of the economies in the cost of government already achieved and prospective further retrenchment. He asserted that there is no good reason that this reduction should not be accomplished by the new Congress at its initial session.

"I do not care to reveal the details of my plan at this time," said Representative Madden tonight. "I want to do some further work on it and perfect it before I make it public. I shall have it ready to submit when Congress meets in December and I am going to do my utmost to procure favorable consideration without undue delay."

"The principle of the plan of reduction I shall submit is simple and definite. It provides for reduction of the burden of taxes borne by all taxpayers. It is not limited to a paring-down of surtaxes. The main object is to afford relief to the taxpayers of small incomes."

"Since the Republican party returned to power enormous economies have been effected in the upkeep of the government. Deficits that stared us in the face have been transformed into surpluses. The existing revenue law was devised to provide an income for the government far larger than is now necessary or will be necessary so long as the rule of retrenchment is adhered to. There is no valid reason that these savings in the cost of government should not be translated into a reduction of taxes at once."

Mr. Madden differs radically from Senator Smoot (Republican), Utah, prospective chairman of the Senate

BIRKENHEAD IS SPEAKER BEFORE BAR ASSOCIATION

MINNEAPOLIS, Aug. 29.—Two distinguished foreign jurists and a member of the United States Supreme Court were the principal speakers today before the annual convention of the American Bar Association.

Lord Birkenhead, former chancellor of Great Britain and Dr. E. S. Zeballos of Argentina were tonight's speakers and Pierre Butler, associated justice of the supreme court, addressed the afternoon session.

Other activities of the day were of a business nature including the formal opening of the convention by President John W. Davis, of New York.

The development of the British constitution in the last fifty years was outlined by Lord Birkenhead, who compared its flexibility with the rigidity of the constitution of the United States, or as he termed them, "the one controlled and the other uncontrolled."

Justice Butler declared there was a feeling that lawyers, as a class were not honest. He attacked "radical" teachings in many colleges, denounced mob rule, and urged members of the bar to aid in educating Americans against the teachings of agitators.

DEATH PREVENTS SERVING WARRANT

NEW YORK, Aug. 29.—Death today saved Princess Lwoff-Parlaghy, famous Hungarian portrait painter and former protegee of Kaiser Wilhelm, from the ordeal of seeing her priceless art treasure seized to satisfy judgments against her for $213,000.

A few hours after she died a deputy sheriff entered and formally took possession of her rare art objects and furnished for the benefit of Ludwig Neesen, retired diamond merchant, who held the judgments against her. Neesen is now in Europe.

Meticulously the law had delayed service of the writs of attachment which had been issued several days ago. When a deputy first went to the home of the Princess he found it dark and apparently without life. He went away and came again with the same result.

Last Monday he called again, this time prepared to force an entry. But before a locksmith could open the door, it was quietly opened by Edward Pike, who informed the deputy that the Princess was at the point of death, and that any effort to seize her treasures would hasten the end. The deputy granted a stay but a guard was placed outside to prevent removal of the property. The guard was notified when death came and the law then took its course. Princess Lwoff-Parlaghy not many years ago moved in the elite society of Europe and America. Among the notables who sat for portraits were former Emperor Wilhelm of Germany, Bismarck Admiral Dewey, Andrew Carnegie, Chauncey M. Depew, Henry Ford and Thomas A. Edison.

In recent years her vogue passed, her funds exhausted and her health gone the Princess shut herself up in her home and awaited the end. She died almost penniless, clinging to the end to her art possessions.

MAY BRING NEW GERMAN OFFER

By GEORGE SELDES
(Chicago Tribune Service)

BERLIN, Aug. 29.—Although Premier Poincare's reply to Chancellor Stresemann is not regarded in political circles here as offering any progress to a compromise or solution of the Ruhr and reparations problem, the Tribune learns from officials in Chancellor Stresemann's office that some of the declarations by the French premier are favorably regarded as clearing the air and likely to lead to a new precise German offer to settle.

Reports are already current that indirect negotiations are under way, but while officials refuse to comment on this point, it is admitted that the idea is gaining in Germany to restate its position in a note. Not only is the German government changed but it is believed that new points have arisen requiring clearing up.

There is considerable disappointment that Premier Poincare did not mention the passive resistance in his reply. Altogether there is a favorable impression, not so much through what Premier Poincare said as about what he left unsaid—that tone to Germany is considerably milder than anything during Herr Cuno's regime.

Premier Poincare's phrase, "pay us or we remain," is on every one's tongue in Germany. While there is considerable discussion regarding the amount demanded, a large part of the German press, some quoting British Liberal statesmen and publications for support, declare that Premier Poincare is inane in asking for such payments but is satisfied with the present and is continuing to demoralize Germany as the best safeguard to France's future.

The Neue Berliner calls attention to the fact that Premier Poincare never mentioned what is considered most important—Chancellor Stresemann's offer to give France a large part of the German industry as a guarantee of payments.

The fact that Premier Poincare is silent on the subject of the "New Deal" is interpreted as his honest intention to come to solution of the problem.

Practically every paper echoes the astonishment of diplomatic circles over Premier Poincare's declaration that the Institute of Economics at Washington is an unknown institution.

CELL-MATE GETS BUDDY OUT BY TAKING BLAME

COLUMBUS, O., Aug. 29.—Familiarity—asserts the bromide—breeds contempt. But in the case of Thomas O'Brien and Fred William Mills, cell-mates in the Ohio state prison here, familiarity bred friendship and friendship bred freedom for O'Brien.

Two years ago, O'Brien was sent up for a 15-to-20 year term for robbing a garage at Elmore, Ohio. He and Mills became occupants of the same cubicle in the penitentiary. They were congenial.

"You haven't kept on telling me you are innocent," said Mills as they sat there on their bunks one night. "I know you did not rob that garage. For I did. I'm going to come clean. I like you, O'Brien."

He did "come clean." And today O'Brien is waiting for the prison doors to swing open for him.

Circumstantial evidence led to O'Brien's conviction more than two years ago he protested that he was innocent, but his pleas were disregarded, he was given a number, a job and a cell.

A few months later, Mills was admitted to the penitentiary to serve a short term for robbery. Four months ago O'Brien's old cell mate was released. Mills was brought to O'Brien's cell.

"Where from?" asked Mills as they shook hands.

"Near Elmore," said O'Brien. "That's funny," Mills laughed. "So am I."

Within a few hours they were telling each other their life histories. O'Brien related how he had been arrested and convicted for a crime of which he was innocent. The robbery of a garage in Elmore. Mills was astonished but kept his own counsel. Days passed, and long nights when the two men with the same "hot town," chatted, and exchanged confidences. Finally Mills could endure it no longer.

Going before the prison authorities he unburdened his conscience and made affidavit that he, and not his pal, O'Brien, was guilty of robbing the Elmore garage. That O'Brien was in no wise connected with the crime. He expressed the hope that O'Brien might soon be discharged.

The matter was submitted to the state board of clemency, which almost immediately recommended O'Brien's release. Affidavits were dispatched to the county from which O'Brien was sentenced. Prison officials expect notification daily to swing wide the gates for him.

"I'll be glad to get out," said O'Brien today taking a long deep breath. "Two years is a plenty 'chuck.' But I like it a lot better if Fred could come along. Fine fellow—Fred."

COAL AS TABLE DECORATION

DURBAN, Natal, Africa, July 29.—Coal as a table decoration was seen at a banquet given here recently in connection with the inauguration of the port's new coal plant.

Intervals on the tables were lumps of coal, varnished to prevent soiling the linen, with holes drilled and filled with water to hold sprays of cut flowers.

$1,000 FOUND IN A "BOOK"

LONDON, Aug. 29.—The widow of the late John Troutbeck, for many years coroner for Westminster, had such a surprise when a box, shaped like a book, containing 200 pounds ($1,000), was returned to her, that she faints. It appears the "book" was among a number which Mrs. Troutbeck sold for three pounds ($15) thinking they were old medical works of her late husband, and of little value. The bookseller on examining them discovered one had a lock, and on opening it found a five-pound note and 190 one-pound notes, which he promptly returned to the widow.

Mrs. Frank Martin and children returned to their home here yesterday after spending a month at Mrs. Martin's childhood home in Appomattox county.

RECORDS MADE IN GOLF PLAY

(By The Associated Press)

CHICAGO, Aug. 29.—Two records were made and a medalist, Mrs. Melvin of Chicago, was eliminated in the second round of the women's western golf association championship at Exmoor today.

Mrs. Elaine Rosenthal Reinhardt, of Dallas, Texas, set a record for the 6,473 yards course with 42-41-33 by defeating Mrs. Elizabeth Klotz Pennett of Chicago 2 and 1 the latter scoring an 85, or three under woman's par.

Scarcely had this record been recorded when Mrs. Lee Mida, of Chicago came in with 39-41-80 in her victory over Lucille Duzenburg of Kalamazoo in the consolation event. Mrs. Mida shot 10 birdies and seven pars but slipped on the 17th hole, taking 7 Mrs. Jones was defeated by Marjorie Burns of Kansas City, Mo.

Danville pitchers have shown a disposition to weaken under the strain of the hard finish. Practically every one has had to be relieved in the last game in which he started. Unless the boxmen brace, Danville might as well wait a kiss at its first-place hopes.

IN "STARVING" GERMANY

News of the recent reports from Germany have painted a picture of a starving impoverished population. In this picture there isn't a rib showing. It was taken at Norderney, popular seaside resort, and shows that the old-fashioned corn-fed girl is still to be seen in Germany.

DEMPESEY PLAYS BALL AT CAMP

(By The Associated Press)

SAKATOGA SPRINGS, N. Y., Aug. 29.—Jack Dempsey, heavyweight champion was knocked out today, but not on the floor of a ring with a referee seated over him. The little holder was knocked out of the pitcher's box when his offense was battered at all corners of the lot during a baseball game between the training camp attendants and catchers on the shore of Saratoga Lake.

After one disastrous inning on the mound, Dempsey was shifted to the bat, where he performed like a major leagueer. He collected a hit on his first drive in ahead of him, and then he smashed the ball over a three day line-off. Dempsey is scheduled to resume training tomorrow, to continue probably with further interruption both he and the training camp will be on the defense of his title against Luis Lopez Firpo at New York September 14.

POT OF GOLD

(By Chicago Tribune Service.)

WASHINGTON, Aug. 29.—The pot of gold, reported found at Hagerstown, Md., by a laborer, has gone into the realm of mythology, so far as government investigators are concerned.

His agents returning today from Hagerstown after a two days investigation were called off the scent after reporting that the whole story was a deliberate hoax.

Navy—Ah! But They're Bitter Air Rivals With The Army

(Special to The Bee)

ST. LOUIS, Aug. 30.—The navy is determined that, in the international air races here Oct. 1, 2 and 3, it will wrest some of the glory and honors now held tightly by the army.

Last year, at Detroit, the army finished first and second in the Pulitzer trophy race, the world's classic, and captured most of the honors in other events.

It now holds the world's speed, altitude, endurance and non-stop records, and is looking around for new aerial conquests.

But that it will have difficulty in realizing its rosy dream comes confidently from its friendly enemy, the navy.

Rear Admiral W. A. Moffett, chief of bureau of aeronautics of the navy, has taken steps that insure the keenest competition ever witnessed between the two branches of the service.

Mystery Planes.

The personnel of the navy contestants for these races, just made public, and this includes the marine corps, shows that it will have four entries in the Pulitzer trophy race for high-speed planes, two entries in the Liberty Engine Builders' trophy contest, for military observation airplanes, and two entries in the Merchants' Exchange of St. Louis trophy race, for large capacity airships.

The navy is also having built for these races two new Curtiss racing planes, which are expected to surpass anything in the speed line ever put out by the Curtiss Company. The new ships will be flown by Lieutenant H. J. Brow and Ensign A. J. Williams, who finished third and fourth in the Pulitzer race last year. The other navy entries for the race will be Lieutenant S. W. Callaway and First Lieutenant L. H. Sanderson, the latter from the marine corps. All four are crack pilots and experienced racers.

The other naval entries are Second Lieutenant G. B. Hall (marine corps) and Lieutenant D. C. Allen, in the Liberty Engine Builders' trophy race, and Lieutenant M. A. Schur and Boatswain E. E. Reber, in the Merchants' Exchange trophy race.

Army to Stand Pat.

Major General Mason M. Patrick, chief of the U. S. army air service, will designate the personnel of the army's contesting pilots. Lieutenant Russell Maughan, winner of the Pulitzer trophy race last year, and holder of the world's speed record of 166.5 miles per hour, made at St. Louis, O. March 29, 1923, is expected to be a contestant.

The army will build no new ships for these races, but it is improving and

This Little World

BY GEORGE BRITT
(Special to The Bee)

CHICAGO, Aug. 29.—The men—those fellows who know the finest girls in the world—are the star customers at the florists' shops on Michigan avenue and in the Loop. But not at the flower counters which hide away in corners of the elevated stations, spreading their perfume at low rates before the rush-hour crowds. There the best buyers are women, and the men who do patronize these stands, the proprietors say, have the unmistakable air of husbands.

Husbands are supposed to be protected against testimony by their wives, but just to this statement from a Chicago wife who just filed a damage suit against her husband, "He wears long silk stockings and fastens them with small gold safety pins to his B. V. D's. He has 30 pairs of extra long ladies' silk stockings for himself all right. He says socks let his knees get cold." Any other nominations for the title of "meanest woman"?

Thirty new members, agreeing to pay regular dues of $1.50 a month, were added last week to the Chicago local of the Bartenders' Benevolent and Protective Association. Put that down as the height of optimism, if you like, but the chubby, bald-faced, white-aproned brothers are going in for faith these days. The desert is going to bloom as the roses, say the beer gardeners, under the moistening influence of the dues.

A Chicago teacher called on a class to define luxury. The best answer given was, "An elevator in a burglar's house." That elevator ought to qualify

Irish Free State May Hold Captives Six Months Longer

DUBLIN, Aug. 30.—Recent powers granted the Irish government have made it clear that there will be no immediate release, in a body, of the 12,000 De Valera followers, including 300 women, who were seized during the late rebellion. The government announces it will continue the present practice of releasing 300 a month. These prisoners are given their liberty on pledge of quiet behavior.

The government made its attitude known following the enactment of a Parliamentary law, permitting the authorities to hold untried prisoners for six months longer. Government officials also pointed out that they have power to make further arrests, if necessary.

Treatment of prisoners continues to be a subject of much discussion and investigation. Protest meetings are held every Sunday in Dublin, where Mrs. Maude Gonne MacBride and Mrs. Despard, sister of the Earl of Ypres, are the chief speakers. They charge that the rebel prisoners suffer from overcrowding in jails, from lack of proper sanitation and insufficient food. Beating of prisoners is frequent, the women claim.

These complaints, when aired in the Dail, bring answers from ministers to the effect that the Republican campaign of disorderliness in jail in order to make political capital of their resulting discomforts. Such was the procedure of the ministers then, the Free State officers say, and they charge that the rebels are imitating the tactics which they employed.

At a recent session, government officials read letters from prisoners to their wives saying they were well fed and cared for. Critics of the prisoners discounted the letters, contending that the captives made light

UNUSUAL FOLK IN DAY'S NEWS

HAS UNUSUAL MEMORY

(Special to The Bee)

ZION, Ill., Aug. 30.—What are the names of the 66 books of the Bible? Eh, what's that? We can't hear you. Oh—you don't know for certain? Well—

Marion Malarion, 24 years old last Decoration Day, does. Furthermore, she can give you the number of chapters in each book.

This done, she can recite the names of the 66 books backward, from Revelation to Genesis!

No, that's not all. She can recite the First, Twentieth, thirty-third, and the Twenty-seventh psalms.

Two years ago Marion arrived here with her mother from Yorkville, England. She began even that early to put many other folks to shame when it came to a knowledge of the Book of Books.

Her favorite attitude when reciting for visitors—and she does this without fear or embarrassment—is to fold her hands behind her back and call out the names or whatever she happens to be reciting, in a clear voice.

Marion isn't the only child wonder in Zion schools. Older it is, the more true, will tell you the chronological list of the books of the Bible, too, giving in addition the year or thereabouts when each was written. Some can recite Christ's gifts to his church. Many give evidence of remarkable memory training.
